

SHOT IN GOLD BLOOD.

Firemen of the Ogdan Tell Their Story of the Mutiny.

KILLED "IN THE KING'S NAME"

By the Captain of the Ship Because He Refused to Go to the Hospital When Sick—Attempts Made to Conceal the Dead Man's Wound—A Brutal Affair.

New York, Aug. 25.—A graphic and terrible story of the recent mutiny on the steamship Ogdan of the Rotterdam line was told yesterday in Hoboken to a reporter by two eyewitnesses of the affair. The men are John Royer and Carl Persinger, two firemen on the Ogdan. It was with great difficulty that the men could be induced to tell their story, they saying that all of the firemen who talked about the matter had been discharged, that Chief Engineer Boli had forbidden them giving any information. When finally persuaded to relate what they knew of the occurrence, their story, to the truth of which they attested by their signature, threw a new and most horrible light on the alleged mutiny.

Royer acted as spokesman and told the following story of wrong and outrage: "The name of the man whom Captain Bakker shot down on the last Europe-bound voyage of the Ogdan was Blum, and he was a fireman. When about 240 miles from Sandy Hook, Blum said he was sick and left duty, going up to the forecastle. Persinger and I were the only others there. Blum sat down at the table, resting his head on his hand, remained quiet, looking very sick."

The chief engineer, hearing of his leaving duty, came and told him to go to the hospital. This Blum steadily refused to do, saying he would be better soon and would return to duty. This was about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. A few minutes later the chief engineer returned, accompanied by Captain Bakker, who ordered Blum to the hospital. This Blum refused to do, saying he would go to his duty again as soon as he felt a little better. The poor fellow as he said this was sitting with his elbows on the table and his head on his hands, making no demonstration and having no weapon about him.

The words had scarcely left Blum's mouth when Captain Bakker, whipping out a revolver, cried in a loud voice, "In the King's name," and fired.

"Placing his hand convulsively over his right breast, the stricken man screamed, 'Lord God! you've hit me.' "Blum was at once removed to the hospital, where, according to one of the ship's boys, the doctor put something into the wound to hide the hole. In an hour Blum was dead. Persinger and I and a coal passer were then called to look at the body, which had all its clothes on, while the doctor stood holding the candlestick over the spot where the bullet hole was so we could not see it. The captain then asked if we could see any bullet hole, and on our saying 'no,' he appeared satisfied and refused to allow any other men to see the corpse."

"When the men below heard of Blum's death they all came on deck, and going to the captain asked him what caused their shipmate's death, to which he replied that he died of apoplexy. One of the men, bolder than the others, stepped out and said: 'You lie; you are a murderer.' Then going below the men stripped the clothing from Blum's breast and all saw the bullet hole. At 2:30 a. m. the same night Blum's body was shoved overboard."

"This is the true story of the Ogdan mutiny and the killing of Blum, and all the rest that has been written is false."

War on the Beer Sellers.

ANDOVER, ILL., Aug. 25.—The sale of beer has been stopped in Andover for the present at least. On the arrival of the United States Indian officials who had been instructed by the Interior Department to close up the beer saloons they proceeded to carry out the instructions, shutting up thirteen of them. A large excited crowd followed the beer destroyers around and at one time trouble was feared, but all passed off quietly. The saloonists will hold a meeting and decide upon a line of battle by replenishing their property. They are encouraged by Attorney General Miller, who concedes their right to sell beer, while the Secretary of the Interior declares they shall not.

A Crooked Attorney.

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—An attorney named Catlin, hailing from Terre Haute, Ind., was placed under $2,000 bonds here to-day. It is alleged that on Saturday at the Palmer House he called upon J. W. Phillips, agent of the I. Keeler & Jennings carriage manufactory, Rochester, N. Y., and while Phillips' attention was diverted procured papers valued at $50,000. Among the documents was a conveyance to Phillips of a half interest in a patent for a road vehicle, invented by George Herman, of Terre Haute, a client of Catlin's. After leaving the Palmer House Catlin is said to have at once mailed the coveted paper to Herman.

A Miser's Hoard Discovered.

St. Louis, Aug. 24.—Edward Baker, an old citizen of St. Louis county, died at his home about two weeks ago apparently in destitute circumstances. A few days ago some of his relatives were cleaning up the house in which he died for the purpose of occupying it and discovered an old trunk containing $17,000, of which $12,000 was in greenbacks and $5,000 in gold and silver.

The deceased left a widow and three children, none of whom suspected his money. He was a farmer by occupation, but was miserly to a degree.

Counterfeiter Arrested.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., Aug. 25.—A deputy United States marshal has arrived here having in custody August Terbet, a wood cutter, residing at Cave-in-Rock, Hardin county. Terbet is charged with passing counterfeit money. It is thought that Terbet was the tool of a gang of counterfeiters at Cave-in-Rock, and more arrests may follow.

Arkansas Town Burned.

FORT SMITH, ARK., Aug. 25.—The town of Charleston was burned last night. Total loss $50,000. The court house and records were burned up. There was very little insurance. The fire originated in the clerk's office.

Some people are constantly troubled with boils—no sooner does one heal than another makes its appearance. A thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the best of blood purifiers, effectually puts an end to this annoyance. We recommend a trial.

IMPORTANT DECISION.

The Famous Trouble Between the Two Parties in the U. B. Church.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., Aug. 25.—Judge Stuart to-day rendered his decision in the long contested suit between the liberal and radical factions of the Church of the United Brethren in Christ. This contest grew out of the adoption of a new constitution at the general conference in New York in 1889. A portion of the church objected to the clause permitting members to unite with secret societies. They withdrew from the conference, organized another and termed themselves the "Radicals." The contest for the church property began, and in several portions of this and other States it became a furious struggle for supremacy. At Green Castle, Franklin county, blows were resorted to, the church barricaded and all manner of strategy enacted to gain possession. Finally it was decided by heads of both conferences to make this a test case, and it was tried in the Franklin county courts.

Some of the best legal talent of Pennsylvania and Ohio (the latter State having the large publication houses of the church) were employed, thousands of pages of evidence was submitted and the expenses ran into the thousands of dollars. To-day Judge Stuart rendered his decision. The main objection of the radicals was that the vote on the adoption of the new constitution was not properly taken, and it was not passed by a two-thirds vote. Judge Stuart, in a long explanation, reaches the conclusion that these objections are not well founded, and holds that the majority must not be two-thirds of all the members of the society, but a majority of all those voting; that all the actions of the general conference regarding the adoption of the new constitution were regular and in full accordance with the powers delegated to it. He concludes that the church at Green Castle has violated none of the conditions under which it holds its property and that accordingly the title remains with the liberals, who are in connection with the legitimate church. The radicals will carry the case to the supreme court.

TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE

Of Wrecked Tourists in Lake Michigan. How They Were Rescued.

MANQUETTE, MICH., Aug. 25.—The party cast away from the steam yacht cruiser on the pictured rocks were rescued yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Ira F. Brainard and W. H. Brainard, of Pittsburg; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Sheets, John R. Davey and K. McDougall, of Cincinnati, were the shipwrecked persons. They had been camping near Grand Island and took the yacht Thursday to visit the famous rocks. A storm coming on, they fortunately got ashore at Chapel beach and the party took refuge in a cave. They only had the picnic provisions they took with them, and they suffered for want of food. One of the men succeeded Saturday in getting to the nearest settlement, thirty miles distant, but those he sent back with provisions never reached the party. The tug Queen, of Muskegon, steamed down Sunday to Chapel beach, but was unable for several hours to take the party aboard on account of the heavy sea. However, a boat containing provisions was allowed to blow ashore from the tug to the hungry castaways. Yesterday the lake was quiet enough to take the party off and the Queen brought them back. Mrs. Sheets is in a critical condition, but the rest of the party suffered little inconvenience from their three days' fast.

MACKEREL DECREASING.

The Business Falling Off—Growing Scarcer Every Year.

GLOUCESTER, MASS., Aug. 25.—An agent who has been engaged in purchasing mackerel caught off the coast of Ireland for the past three years writes that about the middle of August the Irish mackerel catch was fully one-half less than last year, and as a result quotations were high. "Owing to the large amount of fish consumed fresh, especially during the spring, there was hardly enough to supply the home demand, and consequently but little fish were cured for the American market up to the time of writing. But 900 barrels of the fish have been salted, against 9,000 barrels at the same time last year. Mackerel are growing scarcer each year and the catch is falling off to so great an extent that if the loss follows in the same ratio for a few years to come the business will be almost a total failure."

Proctor Gets It.

MONPELIER, VT., Aug. 25.—Hon. Redfield Proctor has received a letter from Gov. Page informing him that he will be appointed to the vacancy in the United States Senate caused by the resignation of Hon. Geo. F. Edmunds.

A Minister's Opinion.

Mr. Jacob Conner, a German Baptist minister at Royer's Ford, Montgomery county, Pa., says: "I have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for diarrhea, colic and cramp in the stomach. I have never used any medicine with better or more satisfactory results. I consider it one of the best ever used in our family."

Sportsman—"Any game about here?" Facetious Native—"There'll be a bass ball game this afternoon." Sportsman—"Very well, I'll shoot the umpire."

Happy Hoosiers.

William Timmons, Postmaster of Idaho, Ind., writes: "Electric Bitters has done more for me than all other medicines combined, for that bad feeling arising from Kidney and Liver trouble." John Leslie, farmer and stockman, of same place, says: "Find Electric Bitters to be the best Kidney and Liver medicine, made me feel like a new man." J. W. Gardner, hardware merchant, same town, says: "Electric Bitters is just the thing for a man who is all run down and don't care whether he lives or dies; he found new strength, good appetite and felt just like he had a new lease on life. Only 50 cents a bottle, at Logan Drug Co.'s Drug Store."
